Hi –

Last Sunday you agreed with Scott Pelley’s proposition that “If Kavanaugh is shown to have lied to the committee, nomination’s over”

This is insane! There is no “if”

- He lied about boofing.
- He lied about ralphing.
- He lied about Renate.
- He lied about the devil’s triangle.
- He lied about the stolen emails.
- He lied again and again about the supposedly exculpatory evidence.
- Etc. etc. etc. etc.

You know this. You were in the room. How can anybody pretend to not know this?

Kavanaugh lied again and again.

He cannot be trusted, and that’s what’s at issue here. Somebody who cannot be trusted is unfit to serve as a federal judge.

The original accusation has served as a catalyst, allowing him to reveal his true character. He politicized the accusation, then lied and lied and lied. That’s all you need to know at the moment. An FBI investigation might clarify some details about the original accusation, but we don’t actually need that. We already know that Kavanaugh cannot be trusted.

Yours truly,

John L Denker
