Stop the Corruption

Integrity is important. Fighting against corruption is important.

You have been standing in the well of the Senate day after day, denouncing the Koch brothers, which is fine with me. However, in an interview on May 8th 2014 you said that Sheldon Adelson is “not in it for the money.” That is disgusting.

The fact is, Sheldon Adelson is trying to buy legislation against organized labor, because he’s in it for the money. Secondly, Sheldon Adelson is trying to legislate against online gambling, not because he’s morally opposed to gambling, but because he’s in it for the money. Thirdly, Sheldon Adelson is trying to buy protection from the Foreign Corrupt Practices act. He’s so corrupt that he needs to use bribery and corruption to protect himself from previous bribery and corruption.

Before, we could pretend that you were sincere when you objected to the corrupting influence of the Koch Brothers’ money. Now all pretence is gone. You attack the Koch Brothers for selfish partisan reasons, and you defend Adelson for selfish partisan reasons.

I don’t think you are stupid enough to believe that Sheldon Adelson is “not in it for the money.” The problem is, evidently you think the voters are stupid enough to believe that. It’s insulting. It’s embarrassing. It’s disgusting.

If you want people to take you seriously, you need to stand steadfast against all corruption.

Yours truly,
